

Employee Handbook

1. Welcome

This handbook describes how we work at Nimbus Technologies. It sits alongside your contract of employment. Where the two differ, the contract takes precedence. The handbook is reviewed annually by the People team.

2. Working hours

Standard hours are 37.5 per week, normally 09:00 to 17:30 with an unpaid hour for lunch. Core hours, when all employees are expected to be contactable, are 10:00 to 16:00 local time. Outside core hours, start and finish times are flexible by agreement with the line manager.

Overtime is not routinely paid. Employees below manager grade who work more than two additional hours in a day at the company's request may take time off in lieu, agreed in advance.

3. Probation

New employees serve a probationary period of six months. During probation the notice period is two weeks on either side. A probation review is held at three months and again at six months. Probation may be extended once, by up to three months, with written reasons.

4. Performance and development

Formal performance reviews are held twice a year, in April and October. Each employee agrees objectives with their manager at the start of the cycle. Reviews are recorded in the HR Portal and inform the annual salary review, which takes effect on 1 July.

Every employee has an annual learning budget; see the Benefits Guide for the current amount and how to claim it.

5. Salary and payment

Salaries are paid monthly on the 25th of the month, or the preceding working day where the 25th falls on a weekend or public holiday. Payslips are available in the HR Portal from two working days before payday.

6. Grievance procedure

An employee with a concern should first raise it informally with their line manager. Where that is not appropriate or does not resolve the matter, a formal grievance may be raised in writing with the HR

Business Partner.

A formal grievance is acknowledged within three working days and a hearing held within ten working days. The employee may be accompanied by a colleague. The outcome is given in writing within five working days of the hearing, with a right of appeal within ten working days.

7. Disciplinary procedure

The disciplinary process has four stages: informal discussion, written warning, final written warning, and dismissal. Warnings remain live for twelve months. Gross misconduct may result in dismissal without notice; examples are given in the Code of Conduct.

8. Leaving the company

The notice period after probation is one month for employees below manager grade, and three months for managers and above. Notice must be given in writing.

An exit interview is offered to every leaver and is conducted by a member of the People team who is not in the leaver's reporting line. All company equipment must be returned on or before the last working day. Final pay, including any untaken annual leave, is paid in the payroll run following the leaving date.

9. Dress code

Dress is business casual. Client-facing meetings may require business dress; the account lead will confirm. There is no dress code on days when an employee works from home and has no external meetings.

10. References

The company provides factual references only, confirming job title and dates of employment. Requests should be sent to the People team and not answered personally by managers.
